SOUTHERN EXPANSION UPDATE

SunRail's Southern Expansion is rolling along, with all departments working together to ensure operational success, when 17.2 miles of new track open mid-year. Osceola County, one of SunRail's five local funding partners, will be receiving its first stations and Orange County will add a station in Meadow Woods.

Poinciana will be the system's new southern terminus for SunRail passengers. The station will host a new Vehicle Storage and Light Maintenance Facility, an over-night and mid-day maintenance home to SunRail engines and passenger vehicles. Currently, Transit Oriented Development (TOD) plans are in the works to bring new residential and commercial buildings to the adjacent area.

Downtown Kissimmee will also welcome a new SunRail station as part of its current intermodal station that is home to Amtrak, LYNX and Greyhound bus services. This station will serve Kissimmee residents heading north for work, but also provide a great opportunity for reverse commuters and leisure travelers that are interested in exploring downtown Kissimmee and the nearby waterfront. A recently completed parking structure will provide parking for 398 vehicles. 40 additional parking spots will be available for use near the Amtrak station. The new SunRail station platforms will be located just north of the current Amtrak platforms.

Tupperware Brands purchased the naming rights to the "Tupperware Station" located near the intersection of East Osceola Pkwy and Michigan Ave, the northern most station in Osceola County. Tupperware Brands is located about a mile away from the station, and owns land surrounding its corporate headquarters. The company has a master TOD plan that includes both residential and commercial development. As part of this plan, a new Orlando Health ER and medical facility is scheduled to open in December, 2018.

Finally, Meadow Woods will serve as the new southernmost station in Orange County, providing residents from this popular bedroom community the opportunity to use SunRail for northbound and southbound travel for work or leisure.

"All four stations provide SunRail the opportunity to attract new riders, many of whom have never ridden SunRail previously," said Nicola Liquori, SunRail's CEO.

SunRail's business development and marketing teams are currently planning community events that will allow the residents of Meadow Woods and Osceola County, the ability to tour the passenger vehicles and the new stations later this Spring. More information will be forthcoming at SunRail.com, SunRail.es and in upcoming versions of On Track.
