SunRail Extends Weekday Service Beginning December 1

New schedule adds 2 late-night trains

ORLANDO, Fla. – SunRail is excited to announce an extension of weekday service beginning December 1. With the new schedule, two new trains will be running during the evening, providing riders with greater flexibility and more convenient travel options throughout Central Florida.

The new southbound evening train will extend service later into the night for riders heading southbound. The new northbound mid-evening train offers additional opportunities for riders traveling northbound later in the evening. To enhance reliability, minor schedule adjustments will be made, mostly by 1 to 2 minutes.

These service enhancements expand SunRail's weekday schedule to better serve both commuters and evening travelers, offering greater flexibility and convenience throughout the region. The new late-night trains provide more options for those staying later at work or enjoying Central Florida's dining, entertainment, and community events, making it easier to ride, relax, and return home safely.

The updated schedule, including all new service times, is available at www.SunRail.com. The new schedule will take effect December 1, and riders are encouraged to review the schedule adjustments in advance to plan their trips.
